13 PERSONS PERISH

Fatal Tenement House Fire Takes Place In New York.

ALL DEAD WERE ITALIANS

Bodies Were Found Huddled Together on Top Floor Where Terror-Stricken Peop'e Had Been Driven by the Flames—Revenge of Burglars.

New York, Nov. 25.—Thirteen persons lost their lives and several others were injured early Monday in a tenement house fire at One Hundred and Ninth street and Second avenue.

All the dead were Italians. Several of the thirteen were children.

The bodies were found huddled together in rooms on the top floor of the building where the terror-stricken people had been driven by the flames which rushed up from the lower floors. They had succumbed before they could reach windows which led to the fire escapes. Some had been enveloped in the flames and burned alive. Others, overcome by smoke, were spared the agonies of death in the flames.

Work of Incendiaries.

That the fatal fire was the work of incendiaries, who sought revenge, is the opinion of the police and firemen who made the first hasty examination. Three weeks ago three Italians were caught in the act of attempting to rob a safe in the saloon of Guiseppe Cudano, on the ground floor. The safe contained over $2,000, which the saloonkeeper's friends had withdrawn from banks during the money panic.

The would-be robbers were arrested, and are now awaiting trial.

The fire of Monday started in Cudano's saloon, and the police believe that it may have been the work of friends of the prisoners, who took this means of squaring the account with the saloonkeeper.

Fled for Their Lives.

Cudano discovered the fire when he went down to open his place of business early Monday morning. As he opened the door, he was met by a rush of flames and without waiting a moment to investigate, dashed up the stairs to the tenements above, crying out for the occupants of the building to run for their lives.

When he reached the rooms occupied by his own family, he burst in the door and seizing his young son, Domonio, in his arms, told Mrs. Cudano and other members of the family to follow him.

Cudano and the boy managed to find their way down the stairs to the street, but before the women could get through, the flames had cut off exit by that avenue. It is supposed that Mrs. Cudano and the other children sought safety in the upper part of the building.

Just what happened in the burning building before the fire was checked never will be known.

Fire Spread Rapidly.

Subsequently the flames spread, and almost before the men arrived the whole building was a furnace and it was impossible for any one to enter. Even the cries of the agonized women and children were drowned by the roar of and crackle of the flames.

Not a single person was seen to appear at any of the windows of the blazing building with the exception of those on the second floor from which several persons reached fire escapes and were rescued. The reason for this was explained, when, after the flames had been partly checked, firemen fought their way through the smoke to the upper floors. There they came upon piles of dead where they had fallen victims to the rush of flames or smoke, even before they had a chance to attempt to save themselves.

Heroic Mother.

In one of the heaps the firemen discovered a woman who had made one last desperate effort to save the life of her baby even when she knew that she herself was doomed to a horrible death. She had folded her arms tightly around the little one and then huddled down close upon the floor, her own body protecting that of the child. The mother's body was badly burned. That of the child bore scarcely a mark, but it was dead from suffocation. On every side of the mother and the babe lay the bodies of other victims.

CARLOS' THRONE SHAKY.

Portugal Thought To Be on the Eve of a Revolution.

Paris, Nov. 26—Reports representing that Portugal is on the eve of a revolution are received here with caution as dispatches coming direct from that country have been censored and those directly across the frontier are held more or less under suspicion. Both the reports of the banishment of the crown prince and the mutiny of the fleet are denied by the Portugal embassy here; nevertheless, the making of arrests, the suspension of a newspaper and other repressive measures which have been taken by what Premier Franco terms "an administrative dictatorship," seem conclusive that matters in Portugal have entered upon a critical stage.

This condition undoubtedly has been precipitated by the interview with King Carlos, which was published last week, in which he announced his absolute faith in Premier Franco and his intention to allow the premier to chose the time for the holding of the election of the cortes. The parliamentary opposition, which has been stirring up the country for months past, expected by a gigantic demonstration planned for Jan. 2, next, to force the king to dismiss Premier Franco, but his majesty's bold endorsement of the dictatorship removes this hope, abruptly consolidating the entire opposition in the direction of republicanism.

SHIPS STORM-TOSSED.

Violent Storm Sweeps Along Atlantic Coast, Doing Damage.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., Nov. 26—The northeast gale, which swept along the Atlantic coast Sunday, was especially severe in this vicinity.

One life was lost as a direct result of the heavy seas, and a schooner was blown ashore and is in danger of being pounded to pieces. All vessels kept within the harbor, and some had trouble in preventing their anchors from dragging and being blown ashore.

The schooner S. M. Bird, with a cargo of lumber, from Charleston, S. C., for New York, parted both anchor chains while anchored off Cape Henlopen and was blown on the beach at Lewes. The Lewes Life-saving crew went to the assistance of the schooner's crew and brougat ashore the captain's wife and child with great difficulty. Captain Boldt and his crew refused to leave the vessel.

The man who lost his life was W. J. Walker, of Grace Point, Va., an oiler on the ocean-going tug Luckenbach. He was pitched against the machinery by the rolling of the tug, and his left leg was crushed. Later he died from loss of blood.

Stabbed Through the Heart.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 26.—At Birchwood, a small village near this city, Garfield Hill, 20 years old, was stabbed through the heart and instantly killed by Nathan Dixon Sunday afternoon. The boys were with a crowd who were laughing and joking when Dixon struck a match for the purpose of lighting his pipe. Hill blew out the match. He was told by Dixon not to repeat the performance. He lighted another match, which was promptly blown out. Instantly Dixon whipped out a knife, and plunged it into Hill's heart. Both are members of prominent families. Dogs are on the trail of the murderer.

Mr. Cleveland Again Ill.

New York, Nov. 26—According to reports received in New York former President Grover Cleveland is again confined ill at his home in Princeton. He is said to have suffered a relapse of the old intestinal trouble which troubled him last June. The present attack, it is said, developed on Taursday last and although severe at first, Mr. Cleveland showed considerable improvement on Friday. The details of his condition could not be learned at his home. Beyond an admission that he "was very ill and confined to his bed," no information was given out."

TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Second Hearing of Thaw Case to Come Up in January.

IS CONFIDENT OF ACQUITTAL

Thaw Believes He Will Be Freed and Is Preparing for Second Ordeal. Both Sides Agree to a Postponement of the Case.

New York, Nov. 26.—The second trial of Harry Kendall Thaw, set for one week from Monday, Nov. 25, will again be postponed, and there is little chance that it will be called until some date well along in January. The decision to ask for a postponement has been agreed to by both sides. It is due partly to the fact that the task of selecting a jury would be made doubly hard by the approach of the holidays, and the prospect before the talesmen of spending both Christmas and New Year's day locked up under the care of court bailiffs, and also to the fact that Thaw's counsel has applied to the court for permission to inspect the secret evidence presented before the lunacy commission during the progress of the first trial.

As an added cause for delay there is a rumor that the attorneys now representing Thaw may apply for a change of venue, declaring a fair trial for their client in New York county is impossible. Such a move, if made, would be based upon the alleged unfriendly attitude of many of the local papers, and the extent to which the evidence was printed and read in this community. District Attorney Jerome will seriously oppose the granting of a change in the scene of the trial.

It is nearly a year since the first trial was begun. It covered a period of twelve weeks, and after two days and two nights of deliberation the jury could not agree.

Thaw, in his cell in the famous old Tombs prison, which he has occupied since the night of the tragedy on the Madison Square Roof Garden June 25, 1906, is planning for his second trial with the same confidence of acquittal that he prepared for the first ordeal. He daily advises with his counsel, chafes at the delays already encountered in getting his story before a second jury and is impatient for his days in court to begin.

It is nearly a year since the first trial was begun. It covered a period of twelve weeks and after two days and two nights' of deliberation the jury could not agree. Seven of the twelve men who heard the drastic recital of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw—a story of alleged wrongful treatment at the hands of the noted architect; a story that, as flashed by telegraph and cable to every part of the civilized world and read as one of the most remarkable utterances ever heard in a courtroom—failed to believe that her confession to her husband justified him three years after in taking the life of the man charged with the ruin of his chorus-girl wife. They voted for guilty of murder in the first degree. Five jurors, on the other hand, were ready to acquit, most of them believing that Thaw's mind had been so upset over the story of the girl's downfall that he was bereft of reason and was entitled to that provision of the law which excuses a person so insane as not to know the nature or quality of his act and not to know that the act is wrong. At the police station the night of the tragedy and afterward in the city prison Thaw contended he was acting as an agent of Providence in sending Stanford White to his grave.

Great interest centers in the course of the defense at the coming trial. It is generally believed that despite any ideas of justification which Thaw may maintain, his present lawyers will confine themselves to making out a case of legal insanity.

Whisky at "Old Hoss" Sale.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 26.—Auctioneer Hill has been arrested at the city of Brewton for selling at an "old hoss" sale of the express company, a jug of whisky. It is alleged to be in violation of the prohibition laws for the express people to adopt this method of getting charges out of uncalled-for goods. A test of the right to thus realize on delinquent charges will be made.

MRS. BRADLEY'S TRIAL.

Hearing of Evidence May Be Concluded This Week.

Washington, Nov. 26.—When the trial of Mrs. Anna M. Bradley, charged with the murder of former United States Senator Arthur Brown, was resumed Monday in criminal court No. 1, the belief was entertained on all sides that the hearing of evidence would be concluded this week. It is not expected that court will sit on Thanksgiving day, and as trials, as a rule, are not conducted on Saturdays, the finishing testimony will be crowded into four days.

The arguments will begin next week and the indications now are that the case will go to the jury not later than Thursday, Dec. 5.

A number of insanity experts on both sides were in court Monday and their presence added interest to the case, because of the conflict of opinion which they are bound to entertain.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Secretary Taft's Train Came Near Being Wrecked.

Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, Nov. 26.—It was learned here Monday that the train upon which Secretary Taft and his party are traveling over the trans-Siberian railroad from Vladivostok to Moscow, had a narrow escape from being wrecked Sunday at Chita.

A switch in front of the Taft train became open when it should have been shut, but an employe discovered this circumstance one minute before the train came along, closed the switch and kept it on the proper rails. Had the train been thrown on to the siding, it would have crashed into a number of freight cars.

Big Football Receipts.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26.—It is announced that the foot ball receipts for the season for Yale will reach approximately $80,000. While this is not a record-breaking amount, it is unusually high. Yale and Harvard shares equally $68,000 after Saturday's game and the receipts of the Yale-Princeton game, also split evenly between the teams, amount to $66,000. The sums spent by visitors to the game Saturday and the enormous amounts won by Yale students on the game will completely break the money stringency in New Haven.

Flurry Will Soon Be Over.

Anniston, Ala., Nov. 25.—J. M. Barr, president of the Woodstock Iron company, declares he believes the financial flurry will be over in a short time. As far as his company is concerned, its blast furnace in this city has lost but one day since it was overhauled and started operations last spring. These views are shared by H. F. DeBardeleben, the great Alabama mineral expert, and others connected with the Woodstock company. This company will not retrench aperations, it is understood.

Little Newsboy Killed.

Atlanta, Nov. 26—Buford Bailey, the 12-year-old son of Mrs. M. A. Bailey of 115 South Pryor street, was run over and killed by a street car at the south end of the Whitehall street viaduct shortly before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The boy was playing with a companion, and in trying to avoid one car ran in front of another and was instantly killed. Atlanta newsboys are getting up a subscription to pay funeral expenses and aid his widowed mother.

Thomas Statue Unveiled.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Sunday afternoon, in the presence of 12,000 or 15,000 people, a bronze statue of the late John W. Thomas, president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, was unveiled. It was erected by the John W. Thomas Memorial association, contributions coming entirely from directors, officers and employees of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad company.

MORE THAN 7,000 GAINESVILLE RUNS

Wonderful Increase in Population for Two and One-Half Years.

THE CITY HAS GROWN RAPIDLY

The Development Has Been Remarkable, Which Shows That Educational and Other Advantages of City Attracts Attention Elsewhere.

According to the statement which will be made by Jesse E. Burtz, owner, compiler and publisher of the Gainesville City Directory for 1907-8, which he hopes to have out in a few days, the increase in population of the city has been something wonderful within the past two and a half years, being more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. This is certainly a remarkable record, and a record of which any city should feel proud. It is evidence that the city is growing wonderfully, and is attracting attention everywhere.

The compiler of the directory has exercised every conservative method of securing all the information properly. He has the advantage of being well acquainted with the city, having been a resident here the past eight years, hence should be in a position to give correct and intelligent information on the subject.

The compiler completed his second edition of the Gainesville directory in 1905, in the month of June, at which time he discovered that there was a population of 5,254, of this number being 2,825 whites and 2,429 colored. He finds this year, two years and a half later a population in aggregate of 7,335, of which there are 3,900 whites and 3,435 colored—a grand increase, about the same proportion in white and colored population. What more encouraging report could be asked of a city's progress?

In speaking of the new directory, the publisher announces that he has taken his time, but that he has made as thorough canvass as could have been made. As a matter of course he does not claim the work which is soon to be before the public absolutely correct, but he will wager that it will be as near correct as the average publication of its kind. "It is absolutely impossible to bring this work down to a fine point of correctness," he said, "but we can come, in a city the size of Gainesville, within a hundred of the actual population of the town."

The people of Gainesville are certainly to be congratulated upon the wonderful growth the city has taken within the past three years. There are many reasons for this, principal among which is the fact of the selection of Gainesville as the seat of the State University. Another reason is the earnest, faithful and persistent efforts of the enterprising people here to bring the attention of the public throughout the country to Gainesville as a desirable point to live; another is the presence here of so many religious and educational institutions of a high order, even the public school having gained first rank among the public schools of the State in attracting people here, many families having come for the purpose of giving their children the advantage of higher education in the public schools.

In all, Gainesville has done well, and the increase in population for the past two and a half years should do credit to any city in the South.

The compiler of the directory is very much gratified at the increase in population which he has noted. A reference to his book for 1905-6, in the preface, and the population which he will give in his new work, will show an increase of which no city or town should feel anything but proud.

MICANOPY NEWS.

Mrs. Sue D. Feaster Entertains in Honor of Bridal Couple.

Micanopy, Nov. 25.—Mrs. Sue D. Feaster entertained a select crowd of friends Tuesday night in honor of her niece, Mrs. Ford of Lynchburg, Virginia. Music and games were indulged in until a late hour, when cake and chocolate were served. Mrs. Feaster was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. H. C. Crawford and Otis Feaster. Mrs. Ford was girlishly beautiful in a gown of pale pink mull, trimmed with valenciennes. The hostess wore white, with touches of blue. Mr. and Mrs. Ford have recently arrived in Micanopy from Lynchburg on their wedding tour. They leave the coming week for Ocala, from thence to Virginia, where they will reside permanently. They have made many friends here during their brief stay who will regret their departure.

Quite a crowd of young folks attended a cane-grinding Thursday night at M. Bauknight's home, west of town. Juice was plentiful, the crowd merry, and all present had a good time.

A fish fry was given Mr. and Mrs. Ford at beautiful Lake Wauburg last Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Feaster, Mrs. Sue Feaster, Mr. Smith and others were present.

The ladies of the M. C. A. tendered a reception to their friends at the hospitable home of Dr. Johnson last Thursday evening. Dr. and Mrs. Johnson were a charming host and hostess and made the time pass pleasantly for everyone. Mr. Melton sang several beautiful selections, while Mrs. Lamb contributed several instrumental solos. Rev. Thrasher added to the pleasure of all by his rendition of "The Holy City." Later the guests repaired to the dining-room, where an excellent supper was spread, consisting of a salad course, pickles, sandwiches, cake and coffee. The table was beautifully decorated in pink roses and ferns. Those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Barr, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Melton, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Merry, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Mott, Mr. and Mrs. K. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hare, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Feaster, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Simonton, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thrasher, Mrs. Sue Feaster, Mrs. W. D. Bobbitt, Mrs. Arnow, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. B. F. Matthews, Miss Matthews, Mrs. Snowden, Rev. Thrasher and Dr. Z. M. Price.

Miss Josie Carlton made a flying visit to Gainesville Tuesday.

E. G. Rivers spent Sunday in Alachua.

Capt. J. W. Carter made a trip to Gainesville Saturday.

A good many of our townspeople spent part of the week in Gainesville attening court.

Mrs. J. R. Emerson is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Henry Simpson.

W. D. Bobbitt is moving his family into the house formerly owned by J. N. Craig, but now the property of J. D. Merry. O. L. Feaster will move into the house vacated by Mr. Bobbitt, which he has recently purchased.

Rev. Thrasher delivered two excellent sermons at the Baptist church Sunday. Micanopy is certainly fortunate in securing such an eloquent man for the ensuing year. Rev. Thrasher intends moving his family from Georgia to our town. We will be glad to welcome them in our midst.

Dr. Z. M. Price is in town again. He has recently returned from Atlanta, where he went to undergo an operation for cataract of the eye. The operation was a success and his friends are rejoicing with him in his good fortune. He is contemplating locating at McIntosh.

We are certainly glad to see Mrs. J. D. Reeves out again. She is just recovering from a severe case of typhoid fever, having been confined to her bed for three or four months.

SECOND DAY OF THE LOWMAN CASE

Considerable Progress Made in Taking of Testimony.

CASE WILL PROBABLY END TODAY

State Rested Temporarily Tuesday Afternoon, When Witnesses for Defense Were Examined—Court Will Open at 8 O'Clock This Morning.

The second day of the trial of the Lowmans, father and son, for the murder of Dunlap Phinney at Raleigh, Levy county, on the 8th of June, 1907, began Tuesday at 9 a. m.

State Attorney Rivers read the indictment to the jury, the fifty or more witnesses were placed under the rule, and the task of the State making out its case was begun by calling to the witness stand Lawrence Gibson, a coal-black negro, who conducts an extenive store at Raleigh, and who is also a wood contractor and postmaster.

Gibson testified that on the day of the killing Dunlap Phinney had come to his store in the forenoon and he appeared to be drinking. He had a pistol. He came back in the afternoon, got his mail and asked to have some checks cashed. He also had a pistol on this occasion. Pink Gibson, his brother, was standing in the door holding Phinney's horse, and he heard Lowman, whose voice he recognized, ask Pink whose horse he was holding, and Pink replied, "Cap Phinney's." B. B. Lowman and his son, George, soon entered the store, the father stepping inside the office railing to get a check cashed and settle his account. Phinney immediately left the store, when Geo. Lowman asked Pink what Phinney was running for, why did he not come back and finish his trading. Pink replied "he ain't runnin'." George then addressed Phinney with an oath and called him a coward. The shooting then began, George Lowman opening fire. When the firing ceased Phinney came back into the store and B. B. Lowman shot him down.

On cross-examination Judge Carter was unable to shake Gibson's testimony to any material extent.

The Star Witness.

Pink Gibson, the postmaster's brother, is what is termed a "butt-headed nigger," his forehead protruding like that of a billygoat, and the way he stuck to his testimony showed that he was also "bull-headed." He was holding Cap. Phinney's horse, when the Lowman's drove up with a mule hitched to a buggy and asked whose horse he was holding; he replied "Cap Phinney's." The Lowmans then hitched their team and came into the store. Cap. Phinney immediately left the store and started to mount his horse when Geo. Lowman asked him (Pink) what Phinney was running for; he replied "Cap. ain't runnin'." Geo. Lowman then said to Phinney: "Come back you bald-headed, cowardly son-of-a- and lets have it out." Lowman then began shooting, firing five or six times, the horse being shot in the running away, Phinney getting his pistol out of scabbard on saddle during shooting. When Lowman ceased shooting Phinney came staggering into the store. B. B. Lowman met him and as Phinney returning the fire was easing down." Lowman shot after he was down and Geo. Lowman shot him in the head with his pistol.

On examination by Judge Carter for defense, Pink stuck firmly to his testimony. He had stood near during all the shooting, and said that he was either scared to death or had more "sand" than negroes. Neither he nor his father said anything against the Lowmans and said in the presence of Lowmans that they knew very little about the shooting.

The Female Clerk.

Miss Cole, a rather prepossessing young woman who was arrayed in a fine dress and some fine jewelry adorned. She clerked for Lawrence Gibson and was present during the entire affair, being in a position to see everything and everybody. She corroborated the testimony of Lawrence and Pink in every particular.

Judge Carter took her in hand on examination for the defense and very perverse, and acted as though he considered her "honor" impeached by his interrogatories. The Judge finally succeeded, however, in getting her to admit that she was married but did not live with her husband. No, she had nothing against George Lowman; why should she?

First White Witness.

Arthur Alford of Raleigh was the first white man placed on the stand by the State. He had gone to a commissary with the Lowmans on a certain day and heard the elder man say, when asked by Newsom to have a glass of soda, that he "would rather drink Dunlap Phinney's blood than cold soda water." He stuck to his direct testimony on cross-examination, and seemed to think, like Maggie, that it was not his business to answer questions propounded by attorneys for the defense.

Youthful Negro Witness.

Robert Coleman, a negro lad apparently 15 years years old, was placed on the stand. He used to work for Mr. Phinney, and one day last winter had rode the latter's horse to Raleigh; when returning home he was met by B. B. Lowman, who asked him where Dunlap Phinney was. Witness replied he was at home. Lowman said tell him he had better stay there, that he was going to kill him the next time he saw him. Several persons were present at the time.

Another White Witness.

J. P. Frye of Archer knew defendants. Prior to the killing of Phinney, one morning he went to Geo. Long's place, near the depot at Archer, to sell some eggs. Geo. Lowman was there cursing Long, and witness heard him say he had bought a new pistol to kill Dunlap Phinney and a damned negro.

Jim Davis, a negro, lived at Raleigh, knew the defendants, and testified to threats made by Geo. Lowman against Phinney. Conversation occurred in front of his (Davis') gate.

W. C. Davis lived at Williston, was at Raleigh on day Robert Coleman rode Phinney's horse to that place, and corroborated threats made by the elder Lowman against Phinney on that day.

Here the State rested its case.

Defense Confers.

When the attorneys for the prosecution announced that the State rested its case, counsel for the defendants asked for and were granted permission to retire to consult among themselves with their clients. They were out an hour and five minutes, and when they returned to the court room the first witness called for the defense was D. E. Williams of Williston, a surveyor. He had drawn a diagram of Lawrence Gibson's store, in which Dunlap Phinney had received the fatal wound, and the defense submitted same in evidence. He pointed out to the jury the several entrances to the store, the objects located therein, describing the partitions, flooring, etc.

W. B. Aldridge of Raleigh testified that he was among the first to reach the scene of the killing. He saw a pistol laying by left hand of dead man; weapon was cocked; it was the kind of pistol which had to be cocked to shoot.

Defendant Takes the Stand.

Geo. Lowman, the younger defendant, was placed on the stand in his own behalf. On evening of day of tragedy he and his father and an old darkey went to Raleigh. On reaching Gibson's store he saw Pink Gibson holding a horse which had a scabbard on saddle with a pistol in same. He asked Pink whose horse it was; he said it was Cap. Phinney's. As he approached the store Phinney was coming out, passing about six feet from me, neither spoke, and I kept my eye on him, as he had shot me in the back several months before. Father had preceded me into the store. I saw Phinney go to his horse in a trot and put his hand on the scabbard, and as he did so I drew my pistol and we began firing at each other. As I fired the horse jumped and ran off. When I emptied my pistol I got behind some boxes. Phinney then went into the store, pistol in hand and he and father met and fired at each other. Phinney was in the act of shooting father down when I rushed up and hit him in the head with my pistol, as I had no cartridges in same. After speaking of bandaging the wounds received by his father and the two going home, in answer to questions by his counsel young Lowman denied certain statements made by Lawrence and Pink Gibson, and cited numerous threats of Phinney to kill him, which had been made to him in person by Phinney, and other threats which had been made by Phinney to parties who had communicated the same to him. He denied in toto the threats which State witnesses testified he had made against the life of Phinney.

The defendant was here turned over to the State for cross-examination, and Col. Rivers began the same. He acknowledged that he had bought a pistol since his former trouble with deceased and said he carried same for his protection.

Other Witnesses.

Jesse Lowman was then sworn for the defense. He knew the defendants and deceased. About the 3rd or 4th of August, 1896, he said that he had heard Phinney say that the next time he and George Lowman met one or the other had to die.

On cross-examination Col. Gus. Long brought out the information that witness was a nephew of B. B. Lowman and first cousin of Geo. Lowman, whereupon Col. Long said in a peremptory voice "Come down."

Arnold Lowman, another nephew and first cousin of the defendants, corroborated the testimony of his brother very emphatically, saying the threats were made on the end of August, 1906. Col. Long on cross-examination could not get the man to remember anything that occurred on any other particular day.

Threat by Phinney.

W. M. Hiers was then called and sworn. About three years ago near Raleigh Phinney had told him that he and Geo. B. Lowman could not live in the same county. Witness had repeated the threat to Lowman some time in December, 1906, six months prior to the killing of Phinney.

Hardy Blitch stated that some time prior to the first difficulty between Geo. Lowman and Phinney the latter had said to him one day that he understood Geo. Lowman was back in the county and intended to make it his home, but the two could not live in the same county. On cross-examination the witness acknowledged that it was himself who mentioned Geo. Lowman's return and intended to make it his home.

Here the proverbial Smith family was introduced into the case in the person of Sam Smith as a witness. He was with the defendants on the day they went into the commissary for soda water and denied that either of them had made any threat in the presence of anyone against Phinney. He was with the Lowmans all the time they were in Raleigh on that day and went home with them. Witness was a cousin of defendants. The witness said Lowman had remarked to Newsom while in the commissary that "blood is thicker than water," not that he would rather drink the blood of Phinney than soda water," testified to by Alford, one of the State witnesses. Newsom was also a cousin of the Lowmans.

W. I. Polk, the next witness, said he was present on the day of the alleged threats by Geo. Lowman to Geo. Long, and that he did not hear any threats. Lowman and Long were

It is important, indeed, impossible, for any one to enjoy the best of health if the bowels are constipated. AFFAIRS AT THE NATION'S CAPITAL

Approaching Session of Congress Excites Interest.

THE PRESIDENT'S BOND ISSUE

Has Created Suppressed Excitement Among Democrats—President's Message, Which is Voluminous, Is Almost Completed—News Notes.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—The recent bond issue by President Roosevelt has created no little suppressed excitement among the Democrats in Washington who are now, quietly but anxiously, expecting a forceful statement from Mr. Bryan showing that the Republicans in their endeavor to explain the present financial situation, are quoting his arguments of 1896. Whatever may be said of Mr. Bryan's "free silver" remedy, the explanations now offered by the Republicans all go to prove the correctness of this luminous genius. Recent events have demonstrated, indubitably, that there is not enough money in the country and that the New York banks and financiers have been able to secure control of most of the circulating medium. The very arguments for elasticity of currency which the Republicans ridiculed with such vehemence when presented by Mr. Bryan in '96, will be presented for the consideration of the coming Congress by President Roosevelt. It is the strong belief among politicians in Washington, that, whether nominated or not, Mr. Bryan is a candidate of whom the party may well be proud, and that he has lost none of his charm, despite the fact that he has been twice defeated for the Presidency; some going so far in their enthusiasm even as to predict that he holds the Democratic party in the hollow of his hand and will keep it there until after the convention meets.

The Republicans view the coming session of Congress with great concern, and their situation is really a delicate one. When it is recalled that the most bitter invective and denunciation ever delivered against Grover Cleveland by statesmen prominent in that party were employed in the castigation given him for issuing bonds in time of peace, the embarrassment of the Republicans in their present predicament is easily appreciated. Undoubtedly on the floor of Congress a brave "bluff" will be put up, after their usual grandiloquent style, but they are telling each other, confidentially, that they will have to undergo the mortifying experience of eating their own words.

Although the necessity or financial legislation has been long realized, and the need of providing elastic currency has been recognized as imperative since Mr. Bryan's speeches of 1896, in fact ever since the repeal of the Sherman Silver Act, there has never been enough of courage and harmony in the Republican party to enact the needed legislation, in spite of the fact that it has been practically in full control of both houses of Congress most of that time. And it is even doubtful if the Republicans will be able to get together on a working basis during the coming session and enact efficient legislation that will successfully cope with the situation. President Roosevelt says he has assurances that Congress will adopt measures for the relief of the country, and Speaker Cannon declares that he has been advised of no such contemplated enactment and knows nothing at all about the subject of financial legislation. In the meantime, the country at large can only wait, in suffering silence, to see just what will happen.

The greater part of the President's annual message was completed before he returned to Washington from Oyster Bay, but of course there were some things that had to be left until a later date. It cannot be learned if he has modified his recommendations, as originally drafted in the message, in regard to the regulation of corporations, but it is certain that he favors either the repeal or radical amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law. That he desires this change not because it is generally too radical, but because it does not permit reasonable traffic arrangements among railroads, is well understood.

But of course that chapter that will be awaited with the greatest interest relates to the necessity of new currency legislation and it is known that while the President will discuss the present situation in an entertaining manner, he will absolve the administration of any responsibility for it. This message, like all its predecessors, will be somewhat voluminous.

Whatever dissensions on the tariff and the currency may exist in the Republican party, voiced by its prominent representatives in this city, the Peace Conference of the Central American States at least is proceeding most harmoniously and there is every indication that an amicable understanding will be reached. The conferees are working on a project to form the basis of a permanent peace treaty between the five nations represented, and the committees expect to be ready to report the latter part of the week on the work accomplished.

According to officials at the Treasury Department it is unlikely after all that the Exposition at Jamestown will remain open after November 30th and until the fleet sails for the Pacific, as was suggested by President Tucker, during a recent visit to Washington. It is stated that the appropriation covering the Government exhibits are available to November 30, and that its part in the show will be necessarily closed at that time.

THE PERFECT WAY

Scores of Florida Citizens Have Learned It.

If you suffer from backache, there is only one way to cure it.

The perfect way is to cure the kidneys.

A bad back means sick kidneys.

Neglect it, urinary troubles follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.

S. B. Lemons, cigar maker, living at 1311 Ashlet street, Tampa, Fla., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of backache and disorder of the kidneys. Two or three times on account of the pain in my back I was unable to work for several days. The secretions of the kidneys were in a very bad condition, dark in color, and if allowed to stand would become of the consistency of jelly. I tried various remedies, taking what seemed like gallons of medicine and I also put on plasters, but nothing helped me at all until I got Doan's Kidney Pills upon the advice of a friend of mine, and using them according to directions they cured me in a very short time."

Always Was Sick.

When a man says he always was sick—troubled with a cough that lasted all winter—what would you think if he should say he never was sick since using Ballard's Horehound Syrup? Such a man exists. Mr. J. C. Clark, Denver, Colorado, writes: "For years I was troubled with a severe cough that would last all winter. This cough left me in a miserable condition. I tried Ballard's Horehound Syrup and have not had a sick day since. That's what it did for me." Sold by W. M. Johnson.

BRYAN NOT WANTED.

Leading Democrats of Birmingham Oppose the Nebraskan.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 26—Three hundred of the leading democrats of the Alabama mineral district, men interested in its industrial development, have joined in a movement to defeat the indorsement of W. J. Bryan by the state democratic convention. They have signed an address to the democrats of Alabama in which they dwell on present conditions of the country, and declare that the next nominee of the democratic party and the next president of the United States should be a man of recognized business ability and constructive statesmanship.

The address continues:

"The undersigned democratic voters of Jefferson county, Alabama, urge that the democratic nomination shall not go by default to William Jennings Bryan. While we admire Mr. Bryan's oratorical power and purity of character, we regard him as unsound on the vital economic questions of the day; and we believe that his nomination would be regarded as a menace by the business interests of the country, great and small, that any prospect of his election would aggravate the present distrust and prolong and accentuate the present financial distress."

I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have ever used." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

The old query, "What is whiskey?" is going the rounds again. It is to be hoped somebody will find out before everything goes prohibition.

Why should the President summon a whole bushel of Governors when he made a mash all in Gov. Hoke Smith and got all about everything.

PRESIDENTIAL POPULARITY.

Just as a bond declines in value as it approaches the time of its maturity, says The Wall Street Journal, so the power of a President usually declines day by day as the termination of his official life draws near.

Every day that brings President Roosevelt nearer to the 4th of March, 1909, when his term of office expires, should, according to this rule, witness a decline in his influence over National affairs. Congress has immense respect for a President whose term of office is beginning, who has just received from the people a positive proof of their confidence and who has before him four years of power and patronage. But it does not pay the same attention to a President whose term is about to expire and who is about to return to private life.

There has been indications, however, that President Roosevelt might possibly escape this fate of Presidents, although he, himself, as a close student of history, has anticipated that fate. His amazing popularity had seemed to grow steadily through six years of his administration, and never did he appear so strong as when he was about to enter upon the last full year of his official life. He had a power greater than that of his office and patronage, a power which came from his strength with the people. A few weeks ago it looked as if the opposition to Roosevelt had broken down. Important Wall Street interests which have been eager to defeat and humiliate his administration, threw up their hands in despair and declared that it would be impossible to prevent Rooseveltism from projecting itself over four years more of American politics either by the election of Roosevelt himself to a third term, or by the election of some one chosen by him to succeed himself.

But events move rapidly in the United States. Sudden changes take place in politics and in business and four weeks of panic have seemed to change the political outlook in considerable degree. Now it is said that Roosevelt must bear the blame of the financial disturbance and that the closing of factories, the discharge of workmen, and the decline in trade will all be attributed to him. His enemies are becoming more aggressive. They declare that his star is descending, that his day is passing. Never before in all his political career has Roosevelt been subjected to the same degree of denunciation as he is at the present time. Even an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States publicly charges him with "playing hide and seek with the American people." The Ex-Senator who is commonly esteemed as the best constitutional lawyer in the country, practically accuses him of violating or twisting the constitution. Countless business men are charging him with having destroyed confidence and producing trade depression. Newspapers teem with criticism and accusing cartoons, and one persistent editorial enemy goes so far as to speak of the illustrious occupant of the White House as "an imperial dead-beat." The columns of American journalism during the past century may be searched in vain for the equal of this degrading epithet hurled at a President of the United States.

Now this certainly looks bad for Roosevelt; but it would be well not to be too hasty in forming conclusions. If in five weeks' time there can be such a change as this in Mr. Roosevelt's position, what may not take place in another five weeks? And it should be remembered that the President has at least five months in which to regain any popularity or political ascendency which he may have lost by reason of the financial panic. There is danger of jumping at erroneous conclusions. It may be that the country will not hold the President responsible for the panic, as would now seem to be probable. Perhaps the country may hold high finance responsible when it comes to considering the matter more soberly. Moreover, if the administration is successful in checking the panic and in restoring a reasonable degree of business activity, perhaps there may be another turn in the tide of public opinion that will give the President again something of that popularity which seemed a short time ago to render him largely independent of the rule that a President with a term about to expire loses his hold upon the country.

"Roosevelt as King" is the startling headline in the papers a few days ago, due to the Professor of Law at the University of Michigan, declaring to his class of law students that the people should elect Roosevelt king. "Election to the Presidency," said the professor, "and the maintenance of the officials under the present system, is attended by too many political complications and evils, and for that reason he favored burning all the bridges and giving a free hand to Theodore I." To the credit of the students they did not, it is said, applaud the professor. This kind of talk shows where Republican policies, if allowed to continue, might lead us.

On July 30 the Republican State Committee of Ohio met and endorsed Secretary Taft for the Presidency. Roosevelt had previously endorsed Taft. But on the 5th of November the voters of Ohio practically repudiated these endorsements. Foraker's friends carried Columbus; Johnson, Democrat, was elected in Cleveland, and Whitlock, Democrat, in Toledo. But Teddy is happy still. The office-holders appointed by him in Oklahoma say they will make him President a third term.

SOME SOURCES OF NITROGEN

BY A. W. BLAIR.
Florida Agricultural Experiment Station.

Nitrogen is the most expensive of the fertilizing materials, and for this reason especial care should be exercised in purchasing materials containing this element.

(a) COTTON SEED MEAL AND DRIED BLOOD.

Two organic forms very much used in Florida are cotton-seed meal and dried blood. If we judge cotton-seed meal solely by its nitrogen content (about 6.6 per cent. on the average for bright meal), its present high price would place it at a great disadvantage when compared with such materials as nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia. It should be remembered, however, that the meal contains also some phosphoric acid and potash. Jenkins and Street (Cotton-seed Meal as a Fertilizer. Conn. Expt. Sta. Bulletin No. 156), have pointed out that the average of 349 samples showed 2.97 per cent. phosphoric acid, and 1.90 per cent. potash. Now, if we accept 20 cents a pound as the price of nitrogen, 5 cents for phosphoric acid, and 5 cents for potash, then for a ton of cotton-seed meal analyzing 6.6 per cent. nitrogen, 2.97 per cent. phosphoric acid, and 1.90 per cent. potash, the calculated value would be as follows:

Nitrogen	$26.40
Phosphoric Acid	2.97
Potash	1.90
Total	$31.27

Bright cotton-seed meal is now quoted on this market at $31.60, and it will thus be seen that the calculated and market price are practically the same. If we assign the same value to the nitrogen in nitrate of soda, namely, 20 cents per pound, then nitrate of soda analyzing 15 per cent. nitrogen would be worth $60.00 per ton. Nitrate of soda is quoted on this market at $59.60 per ton, so that we see here again the prices as calculated and as quoted, running very close together. Thus it would appear that when we take into consideration all the plant food elements, cotton-seed meal is but little, if any, more expensive, proportionately, than nitrate of soda. Should we adopt some other figure as the price of nitrogen, 17c for example, the same relationship would hold true, that is, the ratio of the calculated to the market price of cotton-seed meal would be practically the same as the ratio of the calculated to the market price of nitrate of soda. It may be noted that the fertilizing elements in cotton-seed meal become available rather slowly, and on this account are not lost by leaching to such an extent as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia would be. Hence, for crops that remain in the ground over long periods of time, as the pineapple, citrus, and other trees, this form of nitrogen would seem especially adapted.

Dried Blood is considered one of the best sources of organic nitrogen. It contains from 13 to 14 per cent. of nitrogen, and decays rapidly when placed in the ground. Organic materials, such as cotton-seed meal and dried blood, must undergo, in the soil, natural processes known as nitrification, before their nitrogen can be assimilated by the plant. These nitrification processes are dependent upon minute organisms known as nitrifying bacteria, and these in turn require a certain degree of warmth and moisture. Fortunately for the farmer, these organisms are almost universally present in soils that have been properly cultivated and drained. This fact is well illustrated by the rapid disappearance of animal excreta or meat scraps after being buried in good soil. Nitrification does not take place so rapidly at the surface as it does a few inches beneath the surface; and furthermore, the loss of nitrogen by escape of ammonia into the air will be greater if these changes take place at the surface. Hence the importance of placing organic fertilizers slightly beneath the surface of the soil.

(b) NITRATE OF SODA, AND SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

Nitrate of Soda is very soluble in water, and when thus dissolved, can be taken up by the plant directly without further change. The ease with which this material dissolves, makes it an expensive source of nitrogen to use during rainy periods. For use during periods of drought, and for quick-growing crops, it is especially adapted. It contains about 15 per cent. of nitrogen.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains about 19 to 22 per cent. of nitrogen, and is also readily soluble in water. Much of it, however, is probably not taken up by the plant until it is converted, by bacterial action, into the form of nitrate. It is regarded by some as unsuited to soils having an acid tendency. It should not be used directly with lime, as in this case the lime would be likely to liberate ammonia. Lime does not, however, have this effect upon nitrate of soda.

FATAL MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Gen. Sir Henry Colville Meets With Untimely Death.

London, Nov. 26—General Sir Henry Edward Colville came to his death Sunday as a result of an automobile accident.

The general was riding a motorcycle down a country lane in Surrey. Upon turning a sharp corner he collided violently with an automobile driven by his old friend and battlefield comrade, General Sir Henry Rawlinson. General Colville was thrown to the ground, striking on his head, was stunned and died from his injuries during the night.

General Colville was born in 1852. He is one of the Generals who were recalled from South Africa during the Boer war owing to the disasters sustained by the troops of his command.

DEATH CLAIMS PRESIDENT U. D. C.

Mrs. Stringer Died at Columbia, S. C., Monday Night.

WAS MUCH BELOVED WOMAN

She Had Just Attended the Convention at Norfolk, and Was Visiting in Columbia When the Sad End Came. Had Many Friends Here.

The Jacksonville Metropolis of Tuesday contains the information of the death of Mrs. Sheldon Stringer of Brooksville, the beloved president of the Florida Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mrs. Stringer had many warm friends in Gainesville, and the news of her sad death will be received with much regret here.

The Metropolis says:

"The sad intelligence of the death of Mrs. Sheldon S. Stringer of Brooksville, Fla., president of the Florida Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, reached the city this morning.

"Mrs. Stringer died at Columbia, S. C., last night, while en route home from the General Convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy recently held at Norfolk.

"Mrs. Stringer stopped at Columbia for a visit, and was to have arrived in Jacksonville last night to spend several days with Mrs. Drysdale, who is also a prominent member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. This morning the sad news came that the expected guest died last night at 8:20 o'clock of pneumonia. At her bedside were her son, Dr. Stringer of Brooksville, Fla., and her daughter, Mrs. Guynn, of North Carolina, who had been summoned by telegrams.

Sympathy Extended.

"A large number of persons throughout the State will extend heartfelt sympathy to the immediate family, and also to the large circle of relatives and friends resident in the State, most of whom reside at Brooksville and Tampa. Mrs. Stringer was the widow of Dr. Sheldon S. Stringer of Brooksville, who was a prominent and devoted member of the United Confederate Veterans of Florida.

Dignified and Capable.

"At the convention at Norfolk Mrs. Stringer, by her dignity, culture and gentleness, held for Florida, assisted by the other ladies from the State, a position and standing in the convention second to no other State, and in advance of States with a far larger membership enrollment than Florida, which now has twelve hundred members in the organization, over which Mrs. Stringer was presiding for the second term."

Dancing Proves Fatal.

Many men and women catch colds at dances which terminate in pneumonia and consumption. After exposure, if Foley's Honey and Tar is taken it will break up a cold and no serious results need be feared. Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. J. W. McCollum & Co.

President Roosevelt Warns Officeholders Not To Boom Him.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—President Roosevelt has addressed a letter to members of his cabinet, requesting them to inform federal employes under their jurisdiction to refrain from political activity, with the object of the renomination of President Roosevelt. The text of the letter has not been made public, but its contents are substantially as follows:

"I am informed that certain office holders in your department, holding various positions throughout the country, contemplate attending the republican conventions in their respective states, and urging the indorsement of myself for the presidential nomination. I wish you would direct officeholders in your department who have such a thing in view, that I would regard it as an act of official impropriety and discourtesy."

Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by all druggists.

Chloroformed by Burglars.

Charleston, N. C., Nov. 26.—News reached here from Newton, N. C., of the critical injury of Policeman Goforth Sunday by an unknown man, probably a negro, at the home of Mrs Hutt. Goforth had started to answer a phone call from Mrs. Harringer's home early Sunday morning, she having reported that a burglar was trying to enter. As he was passing the Hutt home a man came out and opened fire, wounding the policeman. On investigation, Miss Hutt was found unconscious in her room, having been chloroformed by burglars.

I had given up hope of living, when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure.
